CLASS POEM

The Freshman Class of thirty-one, Their high school work just begun, Battled along from morn till night, With determined minds to win the fight.

This Freshman class of thirty-one, Took from the glowing evening sun, A piece of red, and from the light, A corresponding piece of white.

These colors waved throughout the year,
Hailing with pride our high school career,
Brimming the clouds by day and night,
Those radiant colors--red and white.

This banner still waves in thirty-five, With instantaneous shiver in the sky, Proclaiming to the world far and near, That this is our final, senior year.

Of the fifty-six who, the course, begun, There remains to finish but forty-one, And now the time is drawing nigh, To leave our school and say good-bye.

Yes, we're leaving soon with a purpose in mind, Our fate and our fortunes to find, Though we pause the while with a tear and a sigh, For the happy days in Old Lyons High.

At last, in our annual, "The Lionite", We ask you to follow the beacon light, And may next year's Seniors carry on the fight, For the dear old colors—black and white.

1931-32

On the fourteenth day of September, nineteen hundred thirty-one, a bystander might have counted fifty-two green looking newcomers strolling through the entrance into the Lyons High School. As Freshmen this group of live wire girls and boys selected the following officers: President -- Clifford Skomp; Vice-President - - Willard Frey; Secretary - Thelma Mansfield; Treasurer - Dewey Hannum; Critic --Dorthia Palmer; Sponsors -- Wr. C. E. Keller, Miss Ivo Hardesty, and Lir. S. E. Bowman. Class colors selected were red and white and the motto: "Today, not tomorrow".

During the year this class enjoyed a Halloween party and a weiner roast. One new member, Charles Bennett, entered class and Harold Ellett, Eugene Jolliff, Mary Bock, and Martin Staser withdrew.

1932-33

The following year, September 9, 1932, a smaller group of forty-five returned as Sophomores. Maybe we were a little paler green in color but we were not lacking in pep! New Members Ralph Heim, in this class were: Cordell Bernadine Gregory, Madden, Geneva Baughn, Curtis Hauck, and Wilma Duffey. that withdrew were Dorothia Palmer Johnson, Ola Fines, Marjorie Virginia Turley, and Needham, Annis Wolford.

Class functions for year consisted of a party and a hamburger fry, also a Free Community Program presented to the public in a most entertaining manner.

1933-34

After an enjoyable vacation, we again entered school on September 11, 1933 as Juniors. There were fifty Juniors enrolled but during the year the following Nona Slamp, Dorthia withdrew: Hineman Dove Hamilton, Evelyn Moore, Ruth Paige Street, John Rollison and Wilma Tibbett Boyd. New members were: Alger Baird, Liaurice Heaton Liaxwell Grounds, and Dilwan Heaton.

On February 2, the Juniors presented their Community Program which was considered one of the best given. Last, but not least, was our Junior-Senior Reception on Friday night, April 20. With little money, but with loads of ideas, we did our best to show the Seniors a good time. So ended one of our happiest school years!

On September 10, 1934, we assembled for the fourth last year of our high school days together. We were at last dignified Seniors, the goal for which we had striven for three years. We had lost many classmates along the way, but we who were left, forty-one in number, were glad we had remained at the stern, but we were also sad that we would not have many more happy days to spend in our dear old Lyons High. One new member, Paul Huey, entered our class and Geneva Hauck and Lowell Jeffers withdrew.

These forty-one Seniors selected the following officers: President - Louie Sparks; Vice-President - Marlin Bradfield; Secretary - Fay Deckard; Treasurer - Dilwan Heaton; Reporters-William Shilkett and Arverda Sensney; Sponsors - -Mr. C. E. Keller and Miss Slack.

The members of the class had a hamburger fry at Mr. C. E. Keller's camp near Newberry on October 26, and a delightful party at the country home of Opal Hasler on March 15.

On April 12, the Seniors presented their Senior Class Play, "The Absent-minded Bridegroom", which was a great success both socially and financially. The cast included the following: Walter Mullis, Louie Sparks, Earl Leavitt, Clifford Skomp, Alger Baird, Jimmie Boyd, Farrel Mullis, Thelma Mansfield, Catherine Schantz, Una Jeffers, Evelyn Davis and Marjorie Benham.

As I sat in the booth of a Crystal Gazer, my thoughts were far away from my future which the lady was revealing to me. As I looked into the crystal, my mind kept reverting back to my high school days in "Old Lyons High".

There in the crystal appeared an image of someone whom I surely ought to know. It was the leading doctor of a large hospital giving orders to his nurses, and I recognized as the serious minded Alger Baird. The nurses were gathered around him and their faces, too, became Three of them were familiar. former classmates of mine, Wilma Twanett Hubbard, Duffey, Twanett was the Farrel Mullis. head nurse in the hospital, Wilma and Farrel ranked high in their profession. As Alger turning to talk to another the doctors, I recognized him as Dewey Hannum. The picture faded.

A Dancing School appeared before me. Their instructor was giving them their orders and each dancer was in perfect rhythm. As I looked at their instructor, she smiled at the progress of her pupils. I would have known that smile anywhere for it was the sunny smile of Christina Baker. Christina, when in high school, had always taken part in all of the "Dancing Choruses" and had announced her desire to be an instructor in a dancing school. As I watched the "Tap Dancers" do their number, I heard a sound that resembled that of horse hoofs in the distance.

The picture of the school vanished, and in its place, was that of a Western Ranch. A horse came galloping up, and as its rider dismounted with the air of an expert, I recalled a former classmate of mine who was always interested in horses. This person was Charles Bennett. Charles owned a large modern equipped ranch, and was known for his fine herd of cattle. As I gazed 'at the surroundings of this ranch, the scene shifted. I was still looking at a farm but this seemed rather familiar. As looked at the modern equipped farm I thought surely the owner of it must know a lot about farm-There were several ing. going about their work and each seemed to know just what was to be done and how to do it. gazed more closely at the one who was giving orders, I recognized the jolly face of Aden Benham. Aden always knew a great deal about farming and he was certainly putting his knowledge into practice.

The picture faded from my vision but it was replaced by that of a fruit orchard. looked around at several of 'the workers in the orchard, one of the men seemed to be jotting down something in a notebook. This person I recognized as Kenneth He had always taken an Brown. interest in Fruit Growing. As he talked with the man beside him, the face of Paul Huey appeared. Paul owned a truck line and did long distance hauling for Brown's Fruit Farm.

The next scene that appeared was that of a large audience. They were listening very intently to what their speaker was saying. The speaker was not hard to recall at all, for it was none other than my classmate, Marlin Bradfield, a minister in one of the leading churches. As I listened to the orchestra of this church, I suddenly became aware of the fact that the perfect harmony was due entirely to their wonderful leader, Clifford Skomp. Clifford was known for his musical ability while in high school, and later in life he had made quite a name for himself in the musical world.

As the orchestra finished its selection, a radio broadcasting station suddenly peared, and who should be seen at the microphone but Frank Sparks. Frank had a speaker's voice, and found little difficulty in broadcasting for W. L. S., Chicago. As I looked at the happy face of Frank, I linked his name with two other boys in my class, Louie Sparks and Curtis Madden, and I wondered what vocation they had taken up in life. I did not have to wonder long for the crystal had revealed another picture, that of a court room.

At the judge's desk sat Louie Sparks, ever serious, and trying to do justice as he saw it. One of the lawyers in this court room who was battling very bravely for his case, seemed strangely familiar to me. After studying his dark eyes, I came to the conclusion that it was Willard Frey. Willard had always had the nerve to stand up and say what he thought, and with Louie's fair and wise judgment, Willard had no difficulty in winning the majority of his cases.

I wondered about the other unforgetable of this member "Trio" of the senior year. As I looked again for the image of Frank or Louie, instead, came that of Curtis there Madden. Curtis, acting a clown as usual, was on the stage of one of our leading shows, and playing oppo-Ruth Carmichael. site him, was Ruth, who had always expressed a actress, desire to become an seemed very happy in her life's work.

The image of Curtis and Ruth faded from the scene, and in its place there appeared the picture Annetta of another classmate, Firebaugh. Annetta, happily married, was living in a cozy little home, south of Lyons where she spont much of her time collecting historical pictures. As I wondered just how many of my classmates had married, the picture of two little homes in Lyons came Across the into view. fence, two ladies were talking and laughing in a very jovial manner. After listening to their conversation for a few minutes, I recognized the voices of Thelma Mansfield and Una Jeffers. was now Mrs. George Carpenter, and Thelma was Mrs. Leo Edwards. The girls had chummed together in their high school days, and were yet the best of friends. With . these two girls in mind, I recalled two other girls in my class, Catherine Schantz and Arverda Sensney.

A CHANGE

As I gazed at Thelma and Una more closely, I realized that I was not looking at them at all. Instead of Una I saw Catherine Schantz. Catherine was now society editor of the Louisville Times, and had met with great success during her years after While Catherine was graduation. in conference with one of the reporters the scene shifted to that of the news office. There at the desk was a serious faced man giving dictation to his stenogra-I looked at one and then the other, trying to decide where I had seen them before. Suddenly it occurred to me that the man at the desk was none other than William Shilkett, better known as Billy, and at his right sat Arverda Sensney, his stenographer. Billy, it seemed, was the Editor of the Louisville Times, and Arverda, always interested in office work, had found it easy, and had met with the best of success in that particular field.

As I wondered where the rest of my classmates were, the picture of a missionary school flashed across my vision. At the head of this school was a small, curly-headed teacher, whom I recognized as Opal Hasler. Opal, as always, willing to work and help others, had taken up Missionary Work in a foreign field. As she smiled and spoke to her pupils, the picture of the school room changed to that of the U. S. Senate Chamber. As I studied the features of this law-making body, I beheld another of my classmates, Dilwan Heaton. Dilwan had been one of our best students in Government, and had taken up that line of work as his life's vocation. During the intermission I had a long conversation with Senator Heaton about our old school days and classmates. He informed me that his cousin, Maurice, was a college professor and that quite often he forgot to go to his classes as he used to do while in high school.

The scene of the Senate Chamber changed to that of a railroad office under the supervision of Ralph Heim. Ralph, in his usual good natured way, despite the great responsibility resting upon him, was smiling to himself as he informed the young engineers of their plans for the construction of a subway the city of Chicago. smiled, the picture of Ralph and his assistants, faded away and in appeared our its place smiling Maxwell Grounds, rounded by a group of admiring Max, it seemed had never girls. married, and having no responsibilities, gave all his attention to the girls and a good time. leaned forward to hear what Max was saying and the changed, and to my surprise, beheld the image of Ward Stalcup, the wrestler, performing before a vast throng. Ward was still wearing his mustache and seemed as proud of it as usual.

The scenes in the crystal kept changing, and suddenly the picture of Rex Workman came into view. Rex was in a barber shop owned and run entirely by himself. He had quite a lot of barbering experience in his younger years, and had taken up barbering as his profession. Another boy by the name of Workman appeared in the scene. This gentleman I recalled as Fred (Tommie) Work-Always interested in animals, Fred had found work as a veterinary interesting and was making quite a success at his profession.

As I thought of the rest of my class members, I wondered why some of them had not yet been revealed. My gaze was shifted back to the crystal, and before my eyes was the face of Jewell Soliday, a motorcycle cop. being serious in all his work, had decided that he would stand for law and order, and this he found in the position of a State Police. The roar of the motorcycle changed to that of an airplane, and who should the pilots be but Earl Leavitt, and Roscoe Keller. I looked at these two young men, and wondered what had become of the rest of the "Senior Basketball Quintet".

Again I found myself back in Old Lyons High, and at the head of the basketball team was none other than Walter Mullis. Walter was teaching the boys some of the tricks he and the other four had used in winning so many As I gazed around among ries. the teachers, I saw Ina Jeffers as head of the primary grade, talking to Glenne Patterson, another one of my classmates, who taught the fourth grade. good it was to see so many of my classmates in dear Old Lyons High. As I started upstairs whom should I meet coming down the stairway but Mary Meurer, Fay Deckard, and Principal Anderson. As the teachers gathered around for a daily chat, I saw myself in the crystal as head of the Girls' Physical Education Department.

I leaned forward to hear what was being said, and the picture faded entirely from the scene, and the crystal became blank. The lady, telling the fortune was saying, "That is all." I paid her the fee, and feeling very well satisfied with my knowledge of the "Future", I departed from the booth, to think over the pictures I had seen in the crystal.

ANNUAL

The first school annual, Orange and Black, was published by the Senior class of 1912. This annual, however, was printed instead of being done in the Commercial Department by the students.

The second school annual was the one of last year called "The Lionite". All the material was written by the students and the work was done on the mimeograph.

This year, our school annual, still called "The Lionite", is being completed by practically the same plan as last year. Each student is assigned some definite work on the staff and the work is being done under the supervision of Miss Slack.

The annual of last year won honorable mention from the National Mimeograph Association. This year there is a trophy offered to the school which puts out the best annual. Without a doubt The Lionite has a good chance of winning this trophy, so the members of the staff feel.

PAPER

The first school paper was sponsored by the Senior class of 1932 and was known as The Senior Echo. The following year the paper became a school project and the name was changed to "The Lions Roar".

PAPER

This year the paper is still called "The Lions Roar" and it has won much favorable recognition in the National Mimeograph Association. During the year there were seven issues of the paper. Subscriptions for the year were twenty cents. The subscriptions increased from 150 copies of last year to 210 copies this year.

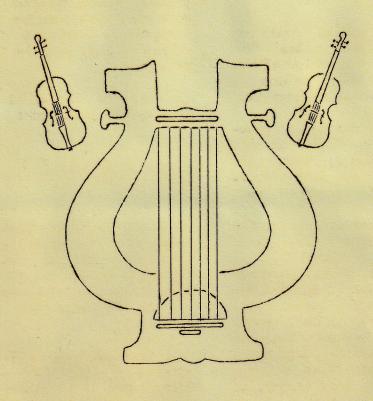

May the Senior class of '36 keep up the good work!

FIRST TEAM

The Lyons High School is certainly proud of the showing of this year's basketball team. It is undoubtedly one of the best ever produced at Lyons or at any other school in Greene County. The members of the team are all seniors and will be graduated this year.

This team was rated as the best in the Wabash Valley and as one of the best in the state; therefore, we, the Senior Class, and all of Lyons High School, give three cheers for Coach Claude Story and his Lions.

The Lions started out the season with a roar by winning nine straight games before they were defeated by the strong Michigan City Quintet on the Michigan City floor. They continued this pace up until their second game in the Wabash Valley Finals at Terre Haute. There they were defeated by Dugger by a margin of three points. They wound up their season with no other defeats until the Regional Final at Bloomington when they were de-feated by Brazil, in an overtime game, 24-22. This game ended the season for 1934-35.

The members of the team were as follows:

Willard Frey- - - Forward. Villard played his seventh and eighth grade years on the junior high team. Then he played his Freshman, Sophomore, Junior and Senior years on the varsity.

BASKETBALL

During his senior year he has scored 330 points out of his team's total of 1015. He is undoubtedly one of the best players ever produced at Lyons.

Earl Leavitt - - - Forward. Earl played on the junior high team during his sixth, seventh, and eighth years in school. His Freshman year he performed on the second team; but was knocked out his Sophomore year by a foot ailment. Not to be downed, Earl returned his Junior and Senior years with strong determination, and was known as Leavitt, the boy with the eagle eye. Earl has scored 231 points of the team's total of 1015.

Alger Baird -- Center. Alger is the lengthy boy from the vast wilderness around Scotland that poped up at Lyons while still a Junior. Though ineligible his Junior year, Alger was coached by Coach Story, and turned out to be a fine center and a great help to this year's team. Alger is 6'4" and scored 151 points of the team's total of 1015.

Roscoe Keller - Guard. Roscoe entered the Lyons School in his Freshman year. He came from Bloomington. He played on the varsity his Sophomore, Junior and Senior years. He proved to be a wonderful guard and was always in there fighting. He has scored 184 of the team's total of 1015.

FIRST TEAM

Walter Mullis- -Guard. Walter played on the junior high team in his seventh and eighth years at school. He then played on the varsity his four years in high school. He was noted as a very capable guard and necessary to this year's outfit. He has scored 67 points of his team's total of 1015.

Jewell Soliday, Fred Workman, Max Grounds, Rex Workman, Ward Stalcup and Aden Benham are other members of this team and have performed greatly throughout the season.

"B" TEAM

The Lyons High School "B" Team, coached by J. T. Briscoe, had a rather good season for 1934-35, losing four games out of thirteen starters.

Myers and McBride were high scorers for the year and were followed closely by Richardson.

The boys that were named as starters on the team were: Mc-Bride and Richardson, forwards; Myers, center; Shilkett and Bunch, guards. With these boys as team mates, kr. Briscoe had very good luck in defeating the first three teams: Midland, Bruceville and Clay City.

"B" TEAM

The last of November a boy by the name of J. C. Moore from Newberry entered school and got a chance at the Cubs' team and made the position of floor-guard. With a new player on the team, things looked still better.

The lineup was changed a little. Shilkett was moved up to forward and Richardson was made center. He proved to be an excellent jumper. After the change in lineup was made, the Cubs went to play the Freelandville boys and defeated them 43-22. Moore did a fine job of guarding.

As the end of the season grew near, the Cubs did not seem to connect with the hoop as they should. The midget forward, Mc-Bride, lost his eye for the basket and so did Moore, Myers and Shilkett. Richardson took Myers' place as regular center in the last few games.

In the Switz City game, next to the last game of the season, the Cubs had more than their share of trouble. Moore, the fast guard, was hurt in a play under the Switz City basket and was carried off the floor. This accident caused the Cubs to lose heavily, Switz 35, Lyons, 18. Lyons was leading 9-4 when Moore left the floor.

The Cubs got revenge on the Jasonville Yellow-Jackets on the home floor in their last game of the season as Richardson and

BASKETBALL

McBride hit in the last two minutes to defeat the Yellow-Jackets, 15-14. Bosell, a subguard for the Cubs, did good work to help them win. Aden Benham was also very dependable when needed. He replaced Bunch as guard in several games during the season. Benham has also played in some of the first team games because of his excellent guarding.

The prospect looks very good for next year. All of the regular men are still left but Shilkett and Benham. McBride is only a Freshman and will be good for the next three years. The Cubs lost only one game on their home floor and that is something.
